Welcome to the Asbury Community

Sun Power

Using the sun's energy is nothing new. We humans are always looking for ways to harness the power of the sun to help make our lives more enjoyable. Sun tea comes to mind. Put some teabags in water and leave the jug out in the sun rather than use the stove. Its simple, easy and tasty, if you like tea.

Utilizing the sun's energy to turn on the lights is also relatively easy thanks to the progress that has taken place over the past decades. Today you can go on Amazon and purchase a relatively inexpensive light that comes with its own solar panel. Outdoor walkway lights can be found in many stores that are powered by a tiny solar cell.

Asbury's hoop house on Bennett Avenue utilizes two larger solar panels for energy from the sun for several purposes. On warm days the temperature inside the hoop house can rise beyond what plants are able to tolerate. Ventilation is provided by rolling up the side walls and by opening vents in each gable end. In our case, these cooling actions take place automatically based upon thermostats inside the hoop house. This requires energy which is provided by the sun. Other uses include lighting, a blower that keeps the poly roof inflated and a video surveillance system. Yes we have cameras to deter theft and vandalism and protect our investments for the community.

Our next project with solar energy is for pumping water. However, none of us are experts in solar energy. Fortunately, the Ford Motor Company Fund awarded Kettering University and Asbury $25,000 to integrate productive solar energy systems to scale up urban gardening efforts in our community.

Glow in the Dark

This is the third article in a series on our core values as a community of faith. In this article I want to focus our attention on being a light on a hill as a result of living out our core values. Jesus tells us that we are to let our light shine that others may see what it looks like when His followers live according to His instruction.

What does it look like? We glow. And in the darkness of the events that took place in Charlottesville, Virginia, the world needs our love to glow brighter than ever.

Far too often we witness inexcusable hatred taking center stage. Hate can never be justified and must be publically condemned by our leaders. The distance is simply too narrow between hate and violence. Racism is a disease that must be eradicated. But when hatred is tolerated and even justified it infects our culture, our institutions, our systems and even our churches.

However, there is something quite powerful that happens when love prevails even in the voice of protest. Perhaps this is an example of what it means to be a light on a hill that others may see our good deeds. A power emanates from our presence that is visibly felt by observers. It is not a power of hate but radiates from a center core of pure love. GLOW IN THE DARK means that even in times of darkness our love remains visible.

The world outside of ourselves begins with the threshold of our own door. A concern for the world begins with a concern for our immediate neighbors. We may feel like we simply do not have the capacity for all of this love or at least not for all of this concern.

I often find myself ready to turn to a different program even within the 30 minutes of a world news program. There is simply too much pain in the stories I am hearing. It seems as though love is not news. Yet in a world where hate and violence is the norm wouldn't love be the more newsworthy story?

In what ways does our tag line, GLOW IN THE DARK, take us back to our core values? It seems that our core values presume there is a light burning within each of us that collectively is at least a bonfire. As our community grows our collective fire burns brighter and hotter.

"You are the light of the world. A town built on a hill cannot be hidden. Neither do people light a lamp and put it under a bowl. Instead they put it on its stand, and it gives light to everyone in the house."

This award is part of the Ford College Community Challenge. Kettering students will assist with the project by installing solar-assisted irrigation systems for Asbury. We hope to use surface rain catchment to collect water.

"With the sustainable method of collecting rain water, we can really turn this project into a large-scale process, into a large-scale business involving the community," said Noah Lukins '18. Lukins believes that Kettering students will be able to apply the engineering skills learned in the classroom and from their co-op employers to provide leadership and expertise on the project.

Support from the Ford Motor Company Fund will lead to the development and installation of the solar technology. The ultimate goal of the project is to implement sustainable technologies in urban gardens in Flint to improve urban agricultural outputs and enhance access to healthy food for residents in Flint.

The foundation of Kettering's project is a unique partnership between Kettering faculty and students and Asbury. Dr. Laura Sullivan, Mechanical Engineering faculty member, is driving the collaboration by connecting Kettering students with community initiatives.

"Nutrition is a big issue for people in our community," said Pastor Tommy McDoniel. "Then the water crisis hit. With proper nutrition, many of those negative side effects can be kept dormant."

Have you heard?

Unfortunately even in a faith community who should know better and who are instructed by scripture not to spread rumors, there are rumors in our midst. "I hear that we are going back to one service if we approve the strategic plan" says one rumor. "Really? Is this true?" "That's what so-and-so says." "What do we do now?"

First, there are no plans to return to a single service. As long as having a traditional service supports our primary goal of disciple-making we are likely to continue with two worship services. So, like most rumors that are spread by persons who feed on fear and anxiety, this rumor is untrue.

On the other hand, during our Town Hall meeting last Sunday, Pastor Tommy made it clear that our discernment is that the future lies in offering an inspirational worship experience. This means that unless we focus our collective energies on achieving this goal we are unlikely to succeed. Inspirational services are becoming increasingly popular and have resulted in more people returning to church.

This lead our design team to join a national campaign called "Back to Church Sunday" as a relaunch of our New Beginnings worship service. The idea is simple. Invite people who are not attending a church to attend Asbury on September 17. If they don't come invite them to come the following Sunday.

Here is a request that will be hard for persons who prefer a traditional worship service. Invite them to come to New Beginnings. Why? Because unless they are already attending a church they are much more likely to come back for another visit if they experience an inspirational worship service. While there are many factors involved in decisions to visit and whether to return, our aim is to meet persons where they are and where most persons are is somewhere other than church on Sunday mornings.

Here are a few points about Inspirational worship to keep in mind:

- An experience of celebration
- Music is live and electronic & rarely stops during the entire experience
- Requires ample space for bands and amplifiers
- Never a blank projection screen
- Makes use of spotlights to define speakers and soloists
- Inspirational worship does not use music - It is music

Prayer is at the heart of our beliefs

The brighter the fire the more noticeable the glow. Eventually, our light will be seen from further away calling more persons to join their flame with ours. Like a fire that spreads through forest full of dried underbrush our fire will spread consuming that which is dead that new life will spring forward out of the ashes.

Our collective fire depends upon our individual fire. This is why we say "glow" as a way of reinforcing that individually our candles do not create such a brightness. Nevertheless, each of us who glow with the light of Christ within us are visible to a dark world. Each of us can offer a guiding light that others might also come to know the Christ that is within us. "I want what they have" said the coach in a recent worship video. "I want to be baptized" he said. Praying for the first time in a long time or perhaps for the first time in his life this man finds the words to ask God for the glow that he witnessed in his players. He too wanted to GLOW IN THE DARK.

Book Club News

.We are in the midst of a discussion of a book titled Soil and Sacrament. Parker J. Palmer writes this about our book: "Fred Bahnson believes that faith is expressed in the work of our hands as well as our minds and hearts, and that in community we can meet the needs of a hungry world. After reading his beautifully written book, I believe these things, too, and see new ways to put my beliefs into action. Soil and Sacrament is about new life—for ourselves, our descendants, and the earth on which we all depend."

A couple words of caution as we work our way through this book. First, you do not have to read the book to attend, but it does help with the discussion and what you receive back from it.

Our goal is to continue to "widen our circle" and so we hope that you will join in on our discussion. We meet each Tuesday at Noon. Come join us for a light lunch, fellowship and discussion. Our food selections have been fantastic and we always have plenty to share. We are always on the lookout for our next book, video lesson or topic. Your participation and suggestions are greatly appreciated.

All Our Days

A New Worship Series on the Power of Prayer
The tradition of using a string of beads or rope knot is an ancient tradition shared by many faith traditions around the globe. The common connection is the ability to give structure to personal prayer. Prayer beads offer a way to remind us of those things we want to talk to God about in our prayers. They can help shape our habits. This summer, we are invited to pray "All My Days" and to make a habit of prayer wherever you are. Each Sunday in worship we will focus on one of the steps of the prayer beads but you are encouraged to pray these all summer long.

Teaching Schedule

Neighborhood Connection

We envision a community in love with God, each other, and our neighbors evidenced by the transformation of ourselves and our neighborhood. We are a center for worship & spiritual growth, a center for connections and a center for health & wellness.

Our goal is a revitalized community where every resident can use their talents and passions for the common good, where children grow into citizens who contribute to building and maintaining a vibrant neighborhood, and all residents are able to enjoy safety, good health, a culture that fosters life-long learning and satisfying lives.

We believe that such an ambitious goal can never be attained without God's grace and abundance and Christ calls each of us to be disciples willing to share our witness through words and acts.
