Bottled Water (The Happiness Report)

Majestic Lake Tekapo in New Zealand with lupins blooming

My parents told me more than once, "It's better to give than to receive." Of course, as a child, this idea doesn't make as much sense. After all, children depend on others giving them love and basic needs and usually don't have anything other than love to give back. Over the years, however, I've learned that the wisdom my parents passed on to me from their ancestors was spot on.

It is better to give than receive. But it's challenging to provide any more than what you have in your possession.

Ten years ago this month, the United Nations General Assembly adopted a resolution that set aside March 20 to be observed annually as "International Day of Happiness." I quickly recalled a line from a Bobby McFerrin song that declared, "Don't worry, be happy!"

Roots (Everyday miracles)

Is there such a thing as a minor miracle? Can a divine intervention be so unnoticeable that it's seldom mentioned? If so, what makes the miracle minor? Is it the number of words printed that tells us the miracle happened? Is it a lack of media coverage or social media hits that we use as a yardstick?

Cyndi and I are germinating seeds for spring planting. So is the Asbury Farms team. So are people in most places where spring is near. By germinating seeds indoors, the plants have time to establish robust root systems and get a jump on a relatively short growing season.

Is a tiny tomato seed pushing its way toward light and eventually producing delicious fruit a miracle, or is it just a part of our everyday expectations? The plant depends on sufficient water and nutrients, so the strength of its root system makes a huge difference in the outcome. Similarly, how close the emerging plant is to a light source impacts the thickness of the plant's primary trunk. These all require interventions to increase the plant's chance of flourishing.

Perhaps miracles require participation from those who benefit the most from the outcome.

People took on the challenge when the City of Flint was forced to change our water source to save money. Rather than whine about the injustice of an outsider making such an important decision without involving the people, the city's leadership and public water systems experts went to work to implement the change.

But the results were disastrous. Soon after the change of water source was made, years of corrosion entered our water as it made its way from the source to our homes, businesses, and churches. Sometimes it was apparent. The water was no longer clean and clear. But, most of the time, our water contained an invisible, deadly additive. Lead was leaching into our water and taking up residence in our bodies.

No one wanted harm to the residents and persons working in Flint. But when harm came, miracles started happening all around us. Residents banded together initially in responding to an emergency. Nearly one hundred thousand people needed clean, safe water for everyday use. But, none of us were sure whether the water coming into our homes, businesses, or churches was safe for human consumption.

Our miracles played out over time as thousands of minor miracles occurred daily. Today, although most of us remain understandably skeptical, the crisis is becoming part of our past. Nevertheless, the damage to bodies remains, and we hope for new miracles, both minor and significant.

We started our Thirsty series with a miracle done for the Prophet Elijah. An angel cared for his basic needs for food, water, and rest. Sometime later, after the Prophet Elijah passed, he left a legacy and a replacement named Elisha.

Before this happened, Elijah called on God to cause an extended drought. The draught responded to his ongoing conflict with king Ahab and queen Jezebel. The monarchy installed a new national religion based on gods other than Elohim. And Elijah warned them God would take away their rain until this changed. And a severe drought parched the land.

Even after the rains returned, there remained areas without safe water. One such city was Jericho. Even though there was plenty of fresh water, it was causing sickness, death, and miscarriages. Elisha was new in his position. His teacher and mentor passed on the torch to him, but he was unproven.

Nevertheless, Elisha instructs the city's water caretakers to bring him a bowl of salt. Afterward, Elisha dumped the bowl of salt into the city's well, saying, "The Lord has healed these waters." And the well provided safe water from that point on.

A delegation of the city officials of Jericho visited Elisha, "We have a problem," they told him, "Our water is bad!"

1 Kings 2:19

This story is given a few sentences organized into a couple of paragraphs. That's it! The story ends with, "And sure enough! The water was purified, just as Elisha had said." The end!

There is no media coverage, and no one posted a video of this miracle. There were no committees or community help centers. At least not according to the story we find in scripture. As a result, very few, if any, of you likely know about this miracle. Does this make it a minor miracle?

The people of Jericho didn't have a pediatrician noticing that children in her care were showing signs of a problem with lead in their water. Nor did any of them know the chemistry of their water. What they learned was what they observed. Residents and visitors were getting sick, and some died, including children. And a community full of promise was becoming a barren wasteland. The city could not survive without clean, safe water.

I'm betting their recovery took a generation or more, but it began with one miracle, and then another, and more following.

There is another story in scripture that takes place centuries later. A woman suffers from a condition that prevents her from realizing her potential. She didn't know what was causing her condition, nor did the experts. But she knew the results and believed that Jesus had the power to heal her body.

Making her way through the crowds surrounding Jesus, the woman touches His outer garment and is instantly healed. Is there any such thing as a minor miracle? If so, this miracle might have gone unnoticed were it not for the awareness of Jesus. And were it not for the importance of telling the world that the Messiah had come.

The people of Jericho didn't go to Elisha to hear a sermon or his report of the excellent news that Elijah's mantle was passed on to him. They came in desperation. They were dying and believed that Elisha had access to the only power to save them. And to Elisha's credit, he responded with what he knew how to do, even during his grief.

Jericho's water was restored to health. With their basic need for water fixed, they could germinate seeds, plant, and harvest. And the woman who touched the garment of Jesus could get on with her life, all as a result of one miracle after another.

There are some weeks that I hope for the days to go by quickly. Over the years, I've missed witnessing a lot of miracles as a result. But the years have taught me that even when failures overshadow me, miracles are happening all around.

And my prayers more often include a plea for God to hold my attention so that I won't miss the miracles. But, more importantly, my prayers extend to all the residents of Flint. Prayers that we won't miss out on the miracles happening around us. Miracles that require our participation and intervention.

It will take a generation or more for Flint to recover. But all recoveries begin with hope, followed by cooperative participation. Do this and with God's help we'll make miracles together.

The Season of Lent is a special time of year for many churchgoers, and Lent is celebrated in various ways. For many, Lent represents a time of deep reflection. For others, Lent is a time for dieting or giving up favorite foods. The day before Lent begins is commonly referred to as "Fat Tuesday") as some of us indulge by eating a pastry known as a Paczki.

We launch our new series on Wednesday, February 22, with an Ash Wednesday service at Court Street Church. The themes for our series is shared among Flint Area United Methodist Churches. Our series is based on content provided by a local non-profit, Clean Water for the World.

At Asbury Church, we're calling our series Thirsty.

Book Club News

As the Season of Lent

progresses we put our belief into practice inspired by a new series, Thirsty. A lot of our content for our series is inspired and provided by the nonprofit CleanWaterfortheWorld.org. Access to clean water is necessary to sustain life. Therefore, clean water is a social justice issue when access is denied.

In order to help us navigate the complexities of social justice while digging into what scripture has to say about God's view on clean water, we're turning to journalist and author Eric Nilsen.

Author of Democracy From Then to Now and Understanding Social Justice, Nilsen has lived and worked in different parts of the world. His experiences give him an informed perspective and knowledge of different cultures, religions, and societies. These experiences inspired him to share his knowledge and viewpoints with us through our study of one of his books.

Understanding Social Justice offers us a clearer understanding of issues, their causes, and the need to address and resolve them. Eric Nilsen offers an opportunity to make a passion for human rights a way of life. And to motivate us to pursue social justice for everybody.

If you are serious about switching from equity talk to equity walk and making the world a fairer and more just place where everyone can thrive, you first need to comprehend how and why prevalent and ingrained in our society.

We launch our new series on Wednesday, February 22, with an Ash Wednesday service at Court Street Church. The themes for our series is shared among Flint area United Methodist Churches. Our series is based on content provided by a local nonprofit, Clean Water for the World.

At Asbury Church, we're calling our series Thirsty.

Water is a powerful metaphor in scripture. From the creation story in Genesis to the river of the water of life in Revelations that sparkled like crystal, water is crucial to life. Life is unattainable without water, but not all water is suitable for human consumption.

In this series, we'll dig into a few water stories from scripture as we explore the obstacles preventing access to clean water for everyone. And we'll learn about responses and how we can help ourselves and others.

The Book of Resolutions of the United Methodist Church, adopted in 2016, calls access to clean water a human right. Yet, estimates of water usage predict that global water demand could surpass sustainable supply by 40 percent by the end of the decade. This prediction is based on energy production utilizing 75% of total water consumption combined with rising energy usage and population growth.

In the U.S., we take access to clean water for granted. At least we did until 2016, when residents of Flint discovered that our public water supply was unsafe to drink.

Speaking of Thirsty. Did you know Flint is not the only U.S. city dealing with lead in their public water? According to the NRDC, high levels of lead are showing up in the public water of Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, Newark, New York, Pittsburgh, and Washington D.C. Another study estimates that over half of U.S. residents drank water with detectable levels of lead between 2018 and 2020.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimates the number of lead service lines to be between 6 to 10 million. However, a 2021 NRDC survey estimates a number closer to 12 million. Either way, there is a lot of damage left to undo.

Lead is a national crisis, and President Biden has called for eliminating all lead service pipes. But is this enough?

Most Flint residents are familiar with the dangers of lead. We took the time to learn about lead because too many of us ingested lead by drinking water coming out of our public water source. In 2016, Flint appeared in headlines worldwide when it became public that children were testing for high lead levels. In fact, lead levels had doubled since the city water began coming from a different source.

If life itself is a human right then so is access to clean water. I invite you to join us for this series that promises to be informative, challenging, and inspiring.

We welcome Pastor Brian Willingham from Bristol / Burton Christ Churches who plans to be at Asbury on March 12.

I pray that you will join us each Sunday morning at 10:30 am. We share our weekly episodes on our YouTube channel. We go live at 10:30 am. You can find these links along with more information about us, or join our live broadcast on our website at FlintAsbury.org.

So what does it mean to be happy? Google this expression, and you will find that happiness includes feelings of joy, satisfaction, contentment, and fulfillment. Likely, we don't need anyone else to tell us when we're happy since we're the first to know it. However, sometimes we need to be reminded that we have every reason to be happy when we're not. Although these reminders don't always help.

The World Happiness Report 2023 was published this year to coincide with the world's annual observation of happiness. This report researches happiness and ranks countries by assessing and assigning a national happiness score. Of course, countries like Afghanistan and Lebanon, which scored at the bottom, may not be happy about the published results. But, on the other hand, they must know they're not happy.

Finland was ranked the happiest country, followed closely by Denmark, Switzerland, and Iceland. The United States made the top 20, coming in at number 16. One position behind Canada and just ahead of the United Kingdom. So we must all be pretty happy, all things considered.

When I think about happiness, the word that comes to the top for me is satisfaction. Unlike the Rolling Stones' lyrics that "can't get no satisfaction," when the dust settles, don't we all just want to find satisfaction? But how?

We've used this word a lot at Asbury over the past ten years. Finding satisfaction is the ultimate outcome found in our mission statement, which reads:

Our goal is a revitalized community where every resident can use their talents and passions for the common good, where children grow into citizens who contribute to building and maintaining a vibrant neighborhood, and all residents are able to enjoy safety, good health, a culture that fosters life-long learning and satisfying lives.

We pursue our mission using an approach based on three assumptions about human nature. The first is that every person has something to contribute. Some capability, that when animated, a passion rises up from within them that motivates them to utilize their gift.

Our second assumption is that happiness, in other words, satisfaction comes when we share our capabilities. The opposite, keeping the fruit of our abilities for ourselves, leads to a lack of satisfaction and addiction. This happens because, convinced that a little more will satisfy us, we engage in a vicious circle of more but never find satisfaction.

Our third assumption is critical and surprising controversial for some. Our satisfaction rises when we sincerely invite and welcome others into our community. Each person who joins our community brings capability that they can share. The result is a rising level of satisfaction for everyone.

The happiness report validated our assumptions. Let me explain.

One of the surprises from the happiness report was a substantial increase in neighbors helping neighbors. The technical term used in the report is "altruistic." Chapter four of the report defines it this way: "A person is altruistic when they help another person without expecting anything in return." According to the report, altruistic behaviors include helping strangers, donating money, giving blood, and volunteering. And the report found a definite connection between happiness and the willingness of people to help others.

When lead was discovered in water coming into Flint's homes, the pursuit of happiness was put on hold. Our attention and energies turned to survival. Without safe water, a city cannot survive, much less flourish. Access to safe water is a starting point for every human endeavor.

LIFE GROUP QUESTIONS & MORE:

A delegation from Jericho visited Elisha. "We have a problem...The water is bad" they told him. "Bring me a new bowl filled with salt." Then he went out to the city well and threw the salt in and declared, "The Lord has healed these water" ... And sure enough! The water was purified...

2 Kings 2:19-22

NOTES FROM WORSHIP

Five horizontal lines for taking notes.

QUESTIONS FOR LIFE GROUPS

- 1. Read 2 Kings 2:19-22 and Luke 19:1-10. What are some ideas that come to mind when you think about salt as a symbol or metaphor? Why do you think Zacchaeus was so set on seeing Jesus walk by? In what ways does Zacchaeus represent you? In what ways do you feel a common bond with the people of Jericho in dealing with Flint's water problems?
2. Read this week's articles titled Bottled water. Do you believe that it's better to give than receive? Explain. Are you satisfied? Why or why not? What gives you satisfaction? Google happiest countries and read about some of the countries who ranked the highest. What did you learn that may help our community? What are your gifts? How do you use the?
3. How can the members of your group help you this week and on-going to help you to be more receptive to hearing and understanding the Word of God? Pray for each other to have the Holy Spirit bless you with more courage.

“Feed Flint”

A meal goes a long way for a senior living alone, a family struggling to make ends meet, or a child fearful of empty shelves at home. But for the residents of Flint who carry the effects of lead-tainted water, nutrition is critical. Feed Flint provides locally grown, chemical-free, fresh produce to residents living in and around Flint. And we're hoping that you can help us provide 10,000 meals this summer.

Feed Flint includes takeout meals, produce boxes with recipes, and home deliveries as part of our work to guide and support families in moving to sustainable abundance. The reality is that Michigan's food insecurity levels got worse during the COVID-19 pandemic, and this summer's recovery is leaving behind those at the most risk of having to miss meals.

Flint families continue to struggle with the ongoing effects of the water crisis.

We're bringing together the resources of the Asbury Community Development Corporation. This includes Asbury Farms, the South Flint Soup Kitchen, the Asbury Community Help Center, multiple food pantries, and our Sizzling Culture Mobile Food Trailer. Our plan is to care for our neighbors when they need it most. We accept all people as they are, and our doors are always open to anyone.

Asbury Farms provides locally grown produce used to create fabulous and nutritious meals. Our seed-to-table approach is community-based. This not only helps families make it through emergencies and crises. We help move families towards sustainable abundance.

Our Sizzling Culture program provides jobs and new skills to our city's youth. This includes year-round employment. Our staff and most of our volunteers come from the neighborhoods we support. We call this sustainable abundance because families move from need-based on scarcity to enough based on community-generated abundance.

Our work is also about food and justice. Our vision is a revitalized community where every resident can use their talents and passions for the common good, where children grow into active citizens. And all residents can enjoy safety, good health, and a culture that fosters life-long learning and satisfying lives. This summer, help us address food insecurity and strengthen Flint's budding local food system by supporting the Feed Flint campaign. Thank you for taking the time to see what we're doing and considering how you can help.

In this reading of social justice, you will find a broad analysis of the big issues around social justice, and new insights that will challenge your understanding of what justice really means.

For Lent, our group will dig deeper into each week's message utilizing reference materials from Clean Water for the World, Understanding Social Justice, and our Sunday message. Our goal is to wrestle with obstacles preventing access to clean water and reflect on possible solutions. Stories from scripture offer guidance on every aspect of life. Interpreting and applying biblical truths, however, require prayerful discernment that is best done in a group.

I invite you to join us each Sunday for worship as we explore what it means that access to clean water is a human right. I invite you to join us for this series that promises to be informative, challenging, and inspiring. And I pray that you'll join us each Wednesday as we dive further into each week's teaching.

If you prefer to avoid groups or live too far away, I encourage you to join us via Zoom for our Wednesday gatherings. Alternatively, you can call in by phone, be heard, and hear what others say by calling (929) 436-2866 -- enter the meeting ID, 282 039 5568#.

We are a diverse group and are delighted when new people join us. I hope that you will join in on our discussion.

You can contact our office with questions, by phone or simply type your question or enter a prayer request on our website's homepage — FlintAsbury.org.

Last week, our theme scripture turned our attention to the town of Jericho. The community leaders sought out help from the prophet Elisha for help. Their residents suffered from unsafe water.

The Lord has healed these waters. They shall no longer cause death ... and sure enough! The water was purified.

2 Kings 2:21-22

Modern-day Jericho is located on the West Bank. The city came under Palestinian control after the Oslo Peace Accords. Jericho is one of the earliest continuous settlements in the world, dating perhaps from about 9000 BCE.

Centuries after the first settlers dug a well, built homes, and created communities, a group of Hebrew slaves camped on the outskirts of the massive wall that encircled Jericho. Led by Joshua, successor to Moses, whom God sent to lead slaves to freedom, God broke down the walls so they could enter the city.

After a few more centuries pass, Jesus walks through Jericho encircled by a crowd who chose to travel with him. The news of His anticipated arrival was heard by a man named Zacchaeus. A person despised by his community for his willingness to exploit his neighbors in cooperation with Roman officials. At that time, Palestine was occupied by Roman forces, and the residents of Jericho were heavily taxed.

Zacchaeus didn't want to miss seeing Jesus come by, so he chose a tree close to the road going through the center of town. From his vantage point, he could clearly see Jesus among the crowd. However, Zacchaeus likely didn't anticipate that Jesus could also see him.

Instead of criticizing Zacchaeus or embarrassing him in front of the people he cheated, Jesus asks to eat supper at his home. Although missing from the story as it is written, we can be sure that when Jesus arrived, He was given water to wash with and drink. Perhaps water from the same well that Elisha symbolically poured salt in to restore it to health centuries earlier.

Many wells have provided water for generations. Residents come and go, many prosper while others don't, but wells serve their purpose through it all. Giving access to water from below the ground's surface, where it accumulates after passing through numerous layers of filtration.

Scripture is filled with symbols packed with meaning and opportunities for connecting with God and finding satisfaction in life. Water clearly stands out as synonymous with life itself. So is salt, which Jesus uses to describe all who follow Him and share the good news through what we do for each other.

God wants you and me to be satisfied with life. After all, God created us and everything that we need and desire. And God is clearly pleased with all that He has done.

Your hobby farm probably started as a way to get back to your roots, literally. It was a way for you to reconnect with nature, your food, and the land and a way to create a sustainable lifestyle. And you're probably aware that there is a growing demand for organic produce and healthy living.

Thus, the idea of turning what was once a hobby into a business enterprise is a smart one. And there are several ways of going about monetizing your farm, depending on what you enjoy doing, what your farm will support, and what the need is in your area. Below, Asbury Farms explains more about how to develop your passion into a hobby farm.

Choose the Products You Will Sell

The first step is deciding what you want to sell. You can sell vegetables, eggs, honey, or other goods that you produce on your farm. If you are not sure what will be popular with the public, then ask your friends and family for their opinion.

Besides produce, you might consider selling crafts like wreaths made from items on your farm, homemade soap, beeswax candles, handmade birdhouses, or whatever craft you enjoy.

You can have a U-pick for strawberries, a Christmas tree farm, or a pumpkin patch with hayrides. But of course, all of those would mean your farm has easy access to a road and a town within easy commute.

Determine Your Target Audience

Next, you need to think about where your audience is. Do you want to sell at a farmers market, a grocery store, or through a CSA, Community Supported Agriculture? Next, how much time do you want to spend on sales? Do you want to be more hands-on and sell at markets in person? Or do you prefer the convenience of selling through an online shop?

If you're selling online, HostGator explains that you must make sure your website lists all of the items that you want to sell as well as what they will cost per item or by weight (if it's something like honey). You also need to include information about where the product is coming from (your farm) so customers know they are getting quality goods from an ethical source.

You may decide to get involved in a community organization like Asbury Farms that resources local farms to feed those in need. Look into similar programs in your area to give back to the community.

Make Your Marketing Efforts Count

Make sure that you have a website that is easy to navigate and provides information about your farm. This will attract customers who want to know more about the products that you have available.

Use social media platforms such as Instagram, Facebook, and Twitter to get the word out about what you have to offer in terms of products or services. These platforms are free and easy for anyone with an internet connection, so they are accessible to a wide range of people. Share pictures of what goes on there on a regular basis, and include videos. You can also make a YouTube channel to provide how-to tutorials.

As you are selecting content for your social media and other digital marketing posts, be sure to focus on SEO (search engine optimization) practices. You'll want to use the right key words and phrases in your content and metadata so that search engines pull your content when people search for those phrases. It's important to know that PDFs are more SEO compatible than other file formats, so use them for your posts. You can convert most files over to this format using a free online conversion tool. It's as simple as dropping in the file and saving the newly formatted version.

How to Structure Your Business

The next step is deciding what kind of business entity will work best for your needs. How much capital do you need, and how much time do you want the business to take up in your life? Will it be a sole proprietorship, partnership, LLC, or S-Corp? Many small businesses prefer to structure as S Corps, which is not a separate type of business entity like a corporation or an LLC. Instead, it is a tax election that you make with the Internal Revenue Service. It is taxed as a regular corporation but not as a partnership, and it keeps the business separate from its owners, which means that you don't have to pay self-employment taxes.

Turn Your Garden into a Growing Business

If you are a homesteader who is looking to monetize your hobby farm, you have everything you need in your own backyard, literally. Just decide what you want to do and what your area will support, choose the business structure best suited to you, market like crazy, and your hobby can soon turn into a very enjoyable and profitable business.
